

Matteo Zanellato graduated the Faculty of Political Science of the University of Padua and the RIISE Master degree program at the National University of Political Studies and Public Administration, having ten years of expertise in politics and political NGO's. Nowadays he is a PhD student in Political Science at SNSPA and Intern at the Centro Studi Giorgio Lago of the University of Padua. His research interests are political parties and the impact of the digital revolution on politics.